Now With F.M.L.

The "No's" would seem to have it.

Both County Supt. H. D. Maxwell and Cameron Mayor E. A. Perrin have announced their non-candidacies for re-election this year.

Mayor Perrin is to become a one-term mayor by this announcement. His brief administration has sustained the continuity and began other anew in Cameron's continuing improvement in streets, airport, limits expansion and industrialization. Supt. Maxwell will not seek re-election to the office he held for three consecutive terms.

NOW-NOW-NOW

What has happened to the duties of county superintendent here is happening throughout Texas. The role historically was to lead the common school districts of a county. Thirty years ago, it was involved in 40 to 50 common school districts.

Now perhaps there are three: Buckholts Rural High School, Maysfield and Gause, though the latter may have voted a new status in recent re-evaluation there.

The role of county superintendent in the future will either have to seek new responsibilities or be abolished as it has existed.

Some counties in West Texas have no county superintendent. The superintendent's role here has gone to co-ordination work among the common schools remaining, and among the independent districts which are, of course, autonomous in their own communities.

NOW-NOW-NOW

Mayor Perrin is stepping away from a job which is increasing in responsibility.

The greater role of maintenance of what is becoming a better network of streets, the constant attention to sewer and water expansion needs of new housing and reinstated older housing, increased pickup of garbage and refuse, the continuing expansion of street paving are increasing the Mayor's administrative role.

The Mayor should have some expense consideration not now allowed. At times, councilmen should be reimbursed, at least, for obvious out-of-pocket expenses forgotten. A vehicle should be available to the Mayor for traversing the streets and blocks of this town. Mayor Perrin often has mentioned the frequent use of private vehicles when city business is the major consideration many days.

The city sales tax has enabled Cameron to keep up with maturing city services almost impossible another way. While Cameron Independent School District has been compelled to rely on ad valorem taxes to meet basic costs, the city has avoided any recent major tax change through careful use of additional revenue from city sales tax and growth in tax base.

The Mayor, no doubt, has contributed to this judgment, along with the current council.

NOW-NOW-NOW

A man in public schools as long as Supt. Maxwell considers a long time before retiring from his field.

But, as both men acknowledge, time passes for us all, contributions are made and remembered, and the world goes on, perhaps in younger hands in a changing world.

Young Father Burned In Home Fire

A young father received burns Thursday when he tried to put out a fire in his home after carrying his two small children to safety.

Kego Valdez, 27, of 809 S. Rusk Street, was treated at St. Edward Hospital for burns on his face, arms and shoulders and was released after treatment. He is an employee at the hospital.

Mrs. Valdez escaped from the house without injury and neither of the children was reported burned in the fire that destroyed their home.

Cameron Volunteer Firemen answered the call about 4:15 Thursday.

Fire Marshal Carl Black said the blaze may have been caused by one of the Valdez children setting some paper afire in the house. Reports said the young child shoved the burning papers in a closet.

Building City's Hits 2 1/4 Millions

Construction starts in 1969 easily cleared the $2 and one-quarter million mark in Cameron.

Heading the major starts was groundbreaking on the $1,150,000 St. Edward Hospital and construction on two sites of 50 additional housing units and community center totaling about $800,000.

Business improvements and construction showed $127,400 in permits, including the new Hensley-Russell Inc. building in Cameron Industrial Park.

And new home and apartment construction hit $112,000 in permits, according to City Hall records.

Remodeling and expansion of present homes totaled $27,100 in building permits.

It was the biggest year for construction starts since the early 1960's.

Building permits include only sites within the city limits. Though near the city limits, new construction like the expansion at Royal Seating Corp. is not included.

A number of homes was built during 1969 within a few miles of Cameron. Home construction slowed through 1969, affecting the final total of construction in Cameron during the year.

Other projects completed in 1969 included an approximate $105,000 sewer and waterline extension to Cameron Industrial Park and about $200,000 in city street construction, not including participating funds from property owners along the newly paved and curbed streets.

Total city construction, including work at Cameron Airport, approximated $3 million during 1969.

Milano Sites Busy

By Lloyd Albertson
A Herald Exclusive

Byron Rose, Houston independent operator, early this week filed intention to drill three more wildcats in the new Cherokee Navarro field located about three and one-half miles east of Milano.

They will raise to ten the number of wildcats either already drilled or definitely scheduled for the booming new field.

Rose's three new tests will be his No. 4 Ray Woods, Location of the No. A-2 and A-3 is on a 174 acre Woods tract in James Welch Survey; the No. 4 is located on a 160 acre lease in B. F. Swoap Survey where Rose drilled his No. 1 Ray Woods discovery well which opened the new field last October.

Rose staked location for the No. 4 last October but delayed scheduling the wildcat until this week. Drill site will be 1,183 feet east and a little north of the No. 1 Ray Woods discovery well which was brought in as a flowing well making 85 barrels per day on potential test.

The wildcat is permitted to 4,000 feet and has the Navarro as its objective, but probably will not be drilled to that depth, since the formation is encountered around 3,000 feet in that area.

The No. A-2 Woods will be located 1,200 feet southwest of the No. A-1, which Rose drilled recently and completed as an oiler. This wildcat also is located 3,000 feet southwest of the No. 1 Ray Woods - - and is 2,600 feet southeast of another new wildcat, the David M. Thomas No. 1 Bead.

Permit depth for Rose's No. A-2 is 6,200 feet, and it is believed it will explore some deeper possibilities than the Navarro formation.

The No. A-3 will be located 6,667 feet south and a little west of the No. A-2 drillsite on the 174 acre Woods tract. It is permitted to 4,000 feet and apparently is intended to extend the Cherokee Navarro field in that direction.

Rose has drilled four other wildcats in the field. They are his No. 1 Ray Woods, the discovery well, No. 2, a good pumpjack, No. 3, which was reported making considerable gas and some oil, and his No. A-1 Woods some oil, and his No. A-1 Woods, oilwell located on a different lease.

Besides Byron Rose, two other operators are active in the new shallow field. David M. Thomas, a Farmington, New Mexico operator, about mid-December scheduled his No. 1 Coleman and Wallace Beard on a 99 acre lease in James Welch Survey and No. 1 J. Robert Bailey on a 140 acre lease in J. Cottle Survey.

Reportedly his No. 1 Beard has been drilled and brought in as a producer, but no information about a potential test has been released on this wildcat, if one has been run.

The other new operator in the field is Victor P. Head of Houston. He scheduled his No. 1 Marjorie Jordan, a 4,000 foot Navarro test, on a 101 acre lease in B. F. Swoap Survey late in December. Reportedly this wildcat was preparing to spud about Christmas Day, but no further information has been released about it.

Forms In; Tags On Sale Feb. 2

"License plates don't go on sale until February 2." That's the word from the tax collector's office. The renewal application you receive in the mail will be used then.

Valter White, county tax assessor-collector, said his office has received phone calls about the applications, and some folks come to his office expecting to buy their new license plates this month.

The Texas Highway Department is mailing the renewal applications to vehicle owners all over the State. Instructions are to keep the applications in a safe place for use when the registration period starts February 2.

The new method of registration is expected to save time for both owners and tax office clerks, since no forms will have to be filled in.

Owners can register their vehicles in person from February 2 until April 1. Mail registration cutoff date is March 1.

To register by mail, the vehicle owner should send his registration application to the county tax collector, with the fee plus $1, which is the charge for handling and postage.

White emphasized that the renewal application should not be torn apart before bringing it to his office. If the address on the form is incorrect, the vehicle owner should print his correct address on all three parts of the form.

"Just save the application for February and don't forget where you put it," White advised vehicle owners.

When license plates go on sale, owners need only take the application and registration fee to the tax office. The clerk will receive the fee, put stickers on the three-part form, and give one part to the owner along with his license plates.

With the application there is no need to bring last year's registration receipt and certificate of title.

Contested Race Develops For Commissioner

The first contested race developed in Milam County when two more candidates filed for Commissioner of Precinct 4, according to Max McClaren, chairman of the Milam County Democratic Executive Committee.

Filing against incumbent Mrs. Dora McCasland are Dalton Caffey and Charles F. Becker, both of Thorndale.

Mrs. McCasland defeated Caffey in a run-off primary in June, 1968 by a 26-vote margin. She received 516 votes to Caffey's 490.

Precinct 4 includes the Thorndale - Davilla area.

Only four candidates have filed in Milam County for places on the May 2 Democratic primary ballot, McClaren said. Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale, whose District 27 comprises Milam, Falls, and Robertson counties has filed for re-election. He is seeking his second term.

BGCT EXCEEDS 1969 BUDGET

The Baptist General Convention of Texas closed its books for 1969 with a surplus of $155,784.34 over its budget of $13.5 million. This favorable financial picture will make possible a variety of additional projects recently approved by the convention's executive board in anticipation of the surplus funds.

The BGCT budget for 1970 will be $14.5 million.

With the addition of more than six million dollars in special offerings, the total mission giving figure for the 1.8 million member Baptist organization is $19,713,766.69. This does not include monies collected through Baptist institutional development or endowment programs.

One-third of the surplus money will be allocated to the Southern Baptist Convention for use world-wide. The remainder will go to Valley Baptist Hospital, Harlingen, and to a variety of State Missions Commission-unmet needs, most involving youth, military or Latin-American evangelism.

Jury Indicts Man For Preparing 22 False Tax Returns

Louis O. Lozano, an income tax return preparer in Poteet was indicted Wednesday, January 7, by a Federal Grand Jury at Austin.

The Grand Jury charged that Lozano, who lives in San Antonio and operates a Texaco Service Station and a tax return service in Poteet, had wilfully aided and assisted in the preparation of false and fraudulent income tax returns for his customers during the years 1964, 1965, and 1966.

The indictment was based on twenty-two income tax returns prepared by Lozano, which claimed deductions totaling $40,614.04, whereas these twenty-two taxpayers were only entitled to deductions totaling $14,206.62.

These false deductions caused the twenty-two income tax returns to report total income taxes due of only $544.95 and to claim refunds totaling $4,722.86, whereas the returns should have reported total taxes due of $4,128.99 and refunds amounting to only $933.29.

The indictment charged that Louis O. Lozano knowingly assisted in the preparation of these false returns when he well knew that these taxpayers were not entitled to the false deductions which were claimed on these twenty-two income tax returns.

R. L. Phinney, District Director of Internal Revenue at Austin announced that, if convicted, Lozano would be subject to a maximum fine of $5,000 and or a prison sentence of three years on each of the twenty-two counts in the indictment.

Gadgets or God

Scientific achievements of the world in recent years could very easily detract our minds from our Creator. Wonders of the laboratory have captured the adoration of all peoples. Lest we forget, and lest we start placing our dependence for livelihood in the marvels of science, let us take a second look. "For by him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thorns, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by Him, and for Him: and He is before all things, and by Him all things consist." Col. 1:16, 17. Then let us stay with our true creator—let us serve Him. Let us attend and support His church.

Kubiak's Legislative Reports

January 31 is the last day to register to vote and everyone should do so if they are over 21 years of age.

With all of the political activity and the important precinct conventions which set the stage for party control, not to mention one or more important home town issues in the making, one would be negligent if he or she forgets to register and qualify to vote.

Robertson County, according to Tax Assessor Bob Steilbauer, is 80 percent complete while Falls and Milam Counties are somewhat below this figure.

Social Security pensioners have known since October that a sharp rise in their premium for Part B Medicare was coming. Now there is a formal announcement that the monthly fee will jump from $4 to $5.30 next July -- or nearly 33 percent. Part B exists to give the elderly the dignity of good medical care at fair rates, and no more.

The State Board of Education here in Austin gave its approval Monday to three projects on crime and narcotics, and vocational and driver education.

Most of you realize that this program could be as harmful as it is good if the instructors are not properly prepared on all of the abuses and are not presented the proper materials in class instruction.

A two-year study of driver education, requested by Ross Rommel, Governor Preston Smith's traffic safety coordinator, was assigned to Texas A & M's Texas Transportation Institute.

The study will compare classroom plus in-car instruction; televised lessons viewed at home plus in-car instruction; classroom plus simulator plus actual driving and classroom-simulator driving range on the road instruction.

Another great change was reported to our office this week. To date, schools throughout the state have had some difficulty in hiring individuals to teach vocational subjects. The State Board of Education amended its certification policies to make possible the hiring of teachers with excellent backgrounds in their field despite a lack in their formal education.

Chandler Receives ACC Scholarship

The Board also agreed to ask for more money in federal funds to provide in-service training for the growing number of vocational education personnel needed by public schools and junior colleges across the state.

The Board also overruled, by an eight to seven vote, a decision to fire a Kerrville teacher for wearing a Van Dyke style beard.

Tips From Tippit

Considering the many years automobiles have been in use, it is surprising how many motorists are confused about the brakes on their cars.

Have you ever seen the brake lights lighted on a car which shows no signs of slowing down? It means the driver has one foot resting on the brake pedal. Some drivers feel that they are being extra-cautious by doing this, because they can apply the brakes more quickly with one foot poised on the pedal.

The mistake involved here is that they are confusing the drivers behind them, who naturally expect stop lights to mean the vehicle is stopping, or at least slowing down.

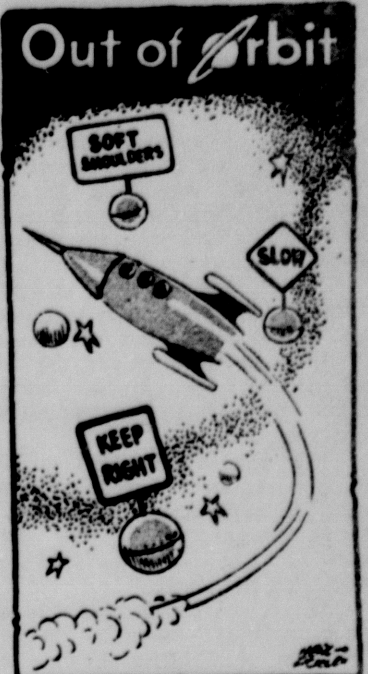

The biggest objection to riding the brake pedal, however, is one of simple safety. It takes very little pressure on the brake pedal to activate the brake mechanism, and the friction between the drum and the lining will generate heat, causing undue wear, resulting in a glazed surface on the brake lining which cuts braking efficiency and can cause the brake drum to warp out of round.

The experienced driver always tests his brakes from time to time in wet weather because he knows wet brake linings will not hold.

Wet brakes can be dried out by pressing down lightly on the brake pedal while maintaining forward speed. It doesn't take long, and this is graphic proof of how quickly light pressure on the brake generates heat.

THOSE CARDS AND LETTERS...

Since November 1, your Herald has gone twice-weekly produced on the average 10 pages per issue through November and December, and converted to offset reproduction.

Mix the technological confusion with personnel change-over, and you have seen an industrial revolution in your midst.

Happily, we can report you, the Cameron and Milam reader, are pleased with:

ONE--The semi-weekly Thursday and Weekend Herald, and,

TWO--The clarity of picture and word in the offset process.

Typesetting is by a different process and a computer for this operation is in the offing. The equipment we now use is tape-driven, involving a small computer.

Your comments have been enthusiastic about the offset production. We made the last run on the Duplex web press Saturday before last.

Pictures, more and more of them, will be a greater part of the newspaper, both in news and advertising.

Phasing personnel from one system to another is a test of versatility and your Herald staff passes with flying colors.

So as TV personality Dean Martin says: "Keep those cards and letters coming," and those subscriptions.

We enjoy doing these things, like anyone else, when people acknowledge the changes for the better.

A WAY TO SMOG CONTROL

Bully for California. It is keeping things stirred up in the smog control field. Gov. Ronald Reagan says he will divert some highway funds in his 1970-'71 budget to smog control. These funds have been sacredly segregated for highway construction and maintenance, there and in most other states, including Wisconsin.

Reagan told a conference on the changing environment that motor vehicles pump tons of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide into the environment, so why should not part of the motor vehicle taxes be used to conquer smog. Why not, indeed?

The auto industry and its bedfellow, the highway construction industry, won't like such diversion of funds, preferring more freeways for more cars. But the burden would be light compared to one that California almost voted last summer, to ban all internal combustion engines in cars by 1975. This passed the senate but failed in an assembly committee.

California's antismog laws are the toughest in the nation, and have led the way to smog control devices on cars, now also required federally. . . .

..The auto industry must accept more responsibility for cleaner air. Lee Iacocca, a president of Ford Motor Co., recently conceded that automakers are "playing under new rules." He was realistic when he added: "And for the first time the rules are being written to a large extent outside the industry."

His Job Is Wolf Control

(Ed Note: We re-run the following feature article, published in The Herald in December. Printing adjustments made it difficult to read at that time and a number of subscribers have requested that we print it again.)

By Lloyd Albertson

The sign was a bright red and was tacked on a fence post beside the pasture gate. At the top "Danger!" was printed in large black type. Below this there was a warning that traps for wolves and coyotes were set in the area; everybody was cautioned to stay away and keep their dogs away.

Clifford Morgan, who is well known to Milam County farmers and ranchers for his work as a trapper, pointed to the poster as he got out of the pickup truck to open the gate and drive into the pasture.

"We always put them up so people will know there are traps set," he explained. "There's not much danger, except now and then to a dog - but we wouldn't want that to happen."

Morgan - his official title is District Field Assistant in the Division of Wildlife Service of U. S. Sport Fisheries & Wildlife - had driven up to the big pasture in the Pond Creek area to check on some traps he had set out several days before after wolves had been reported seen there. This writer was along to find out how a trapper does his job.

Inside the pasture, Morgan drove the pickup towards the line of traps, and explained how the trap, called a "wolf getter," works.

It kills the wolf almost instantly by exploding a small cartridge containing cyanide, a deadly gas, when the animal pulls on the bait and releases a trigger. The trap, a metal device only a few inches in length, is buried in the ground except for about four inches of a rod that sticks up and is topped by a small knob. This knob is covered by a small piece of cloth to hold the bait, which is smeared on it. It has a disagreeable odor, but has been found to attract a wolf or coyote. When the wolf tugs on the bait and explodes the cartridge, the cyanide goes into his mouth and lungs, killing him.

"He may run fifty or seventy five yards," Morgan said, "but he really is dead almost instantly."

"After all," he added, "the purpose of trapping an animal is to destroy it - and this trap does that. Most other kinds of traps only catch and hold them, and then they have to be killed. So this trap would seem to be the most humane way to do it."

There is little or no danger from the trap to other animals, except occasionally to a dog. It requires a rather hard pull - about two pounds - on the bait to trigger it. And the bait attracts wolves but not other animals.

A small stake with a caution notice is driven into the ground near a trap to warn any person passing that way to avoid it. Most of these had been knocked down by the cattle in the pasture, and Morgan replaced them as we went from one trap location to another. None had been triggered. He rebaited them; a rain that day before had washed off meat of the old bait.

"Looks like there may not be any here now," he remarked as he turned the pickup around and headed back towards the pasture gate. "Wolves like to travel around; they seldom stay in one place very long."

Clifford Morgan is a tall man with graying hair and a friendly smile. He is one of twelve trappers employed in the A & M District, which includes Milam County. The district runs from Falls County south to Victoria and the coast, then east to the Louisiana state line. Texas is divided into several districts; San Antonio is the headquarters for the state.

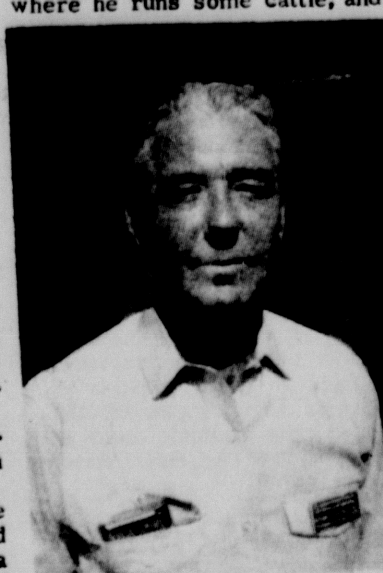

A trapper usually works in his own area, which may include a half dozen counties, but can be sent anywhere in the district. Farmers and ranchers who are suffering losses from wolves or other predatory animals can notify a trapper in person or through the district headquarters.

Morgan started work as a trapper with the Wildlife Service in 1953.

"I like to work outdoors," he explained. "And I have hunted and done some trapping since I was a boy." An instructor from A & M University helped him become familiar with the job when he went on a trip with him during several days.

Morgan and his wife live on a 150 acre farm near Pettibone where he runs some cattle, and as he explains, does just enough farming to raise some feed for them. While he traps mostly wolves, he also traps other predatory animals, including bobcats and foxes.

THE WOLVES

Wolves have not been numerous in this area in recent years, he said, and in a good many cases they have been bred with coyotes. This has produced a smaller animal, but one that can be destructive. They can kill baby calves, young lambs and small deer.

"Their mating season is in January and February," Morgan said. "The pups are born about nine weeks later. About two weeks before they are due, the pair start to build a den. They usually start in an old armadillo hole or one on the side of a gully, and enlarge it into a tunnel six or eight feet long. At the end they dig out a small room for the female and the pups. The litter can be from five to a dozen - usually six or seven."

The wolf brings in food for the first few days; then the female comes out for short periods and the pups come out later.

Wolves do not hunt in packs, Morgan said, in spite of the general belief that they do. "When people say they have seen a pack of wolves, what they really have seen was a family traveling together. The pups stay together until almost grown before they separate and drift away."

Wolves do hunt in pairs, however, he added, and are excellent hunters. They can outrun most animals, even jack rabbits, and know how to drive one into an ambush where a wolf lies hidden. "They do not usually kill just to be killing something, only for food," he explained. "However, one pair of wolves working together can kill off a farmer's flock of sheep one at a time and before long put him out of business. That's why they have to be controlled."

He paused and added: "And that is what I want to make clear. Our trapping operation is to control wildlife - never to eradicate it."

The barn owl is the only owl with a white, heart-shaped face. It is long-legged and knock-kneed.

Area Students Are Mid-Term Grads

Two Cameron area students are among the record 1,079 candidates for mid-term graduation at Texas A&M University, announced Registrar Robert A. Lacey.

Degree candidates are Barbara Ann Magre of 1704 Cleveland, Cameron, master's in education and Henry William Abel Jr., Route 1, Buckholts, bachelor's in veterinary science.

Commencement exercises will be conducted Jan. 17.

Lacey said 684 students have filed for baccalaureate degrees, 257 for master's degrees and 138 for doctorates.

Indians discovered oil in Texas and told the first explorers from Europe that it had medicinal properties. The first record of Europeans' use of oil here was that of survivors of the DeSoto expedition in 1543 who calked their boats with the sticky, black fluid found near Sabine Pass.

Tax Filing

By Edwin A. Bigbee

Everyone who has been using the 1040A Card Form to file their tax returns in previous years is in for a surprise.

The 1040A, popularly known as the short form and a perennial favorite of American taxpayers, has been eliminated this year, leaving about 22 million people to face the standard 1040 long form for the very first time. The long form itself has been changed dramatically; it is completely revised.

Although a great deal of confusion may result from this basic change in tax forms, it could easily prove to be a blessing in disguise. In past years, countless taxpayers cost themselves literally millions of dollars by not using the long form 1040 and itemizing all legitimate deductions which they should have been claiming. No such provision for itemizing was incorporated in the old 1040A.

Therefore, many individuals who previously used the 1040A because it was "easier" will be (happily) forced to use the newly revised form 1040, . . . which may well result in a lowering of their tax liability.

"If you are using the long form 1040 for the first time this year," cautioned Bigbee, "it might pay you to seek qualified tax help—or even if you have used the long form before, because it is completely revised."

The first drilled, producing oil well in Texas was drilled in 1866 by Lyne T. Barret, at Melrose.
